PARTICIPATING PUBLISHERS

ARBEITER RING publishes books that provide a radical analysis of contemporary politics and culture.

Since 1977 BETWEEN THE LINES has been known for publishing important, radical and revolutionary books. While we remain rooted in our core areas—Canadian history, politics, sociology, labour studies, media, activism and women's studies—our publishing program is ever-evolving and includes works in anthropology, economics, philosophy, criminology, public policy and critical race studies. Our books combine the best scholarly analysis with the honesty of lived experience.

Founded in 1980, the CANADIAN CENTRE FOR POLICY ALTERNATIVES is supported by its 10,000 individual and organizational members. Our work covers a broad range of economic and social issues. Our books appeal to a broad general readership, as well as to researchers, policy-makers, academics and students. We have a large archive of publications that are available free of charge from our website.

CHARIVARI is a new press whose aim is to publish significant works of cultural criticism and fiction.

DEMETER PRESS is the first book publisher focused specifically on the topic of mothering/motherhood. In patriarchal culture, where there are so few examples of empowered mothering, in both life and literature, The Goddess Demeter's triumphant resistance serves as model for the possibility—and power—of feminist mothering.

FERNWOOD PUBLISHING was established in 1991. We publish critical non-fiction that provides insight into and challenges existing norms. Our main focus is in the social sciences and humanities, particularly on sociology, labour studies, women's studies, gender studies, critical theory and research, political economy, cultural studies and social work.

Home of the internationally renowned Socialist Register, MERLIN PRESS is a leading publisher in the intellectual tradition of the British left. It produces outstanding works in early English history, the labour movement, contemporary political history across continents, sociology of arts, literary criticism, as well as translations of some of the classics of the European continental left.

Whether you are interested in political theory, current affairs or agit-prop murals, the U.S. publisher MONTHLY REVIEW PRESS has first-class books in these and many other fields. MRP gives voice to rich and multifaceted progressive scholarship in all areas of social studies.

THE NEW PRESS is a not-for-profit publishing house operated editorially in the public interest. It is committed to publishing in innovative ways works of educational, cultural and community value that, despite their intellectual merits, may be deemed insufficiently profitable by commercial publishers. The New Press aims to provide ideas and viewpoints under-represented in the mass media.

PAMBAZUKA PRESS the progressive Pan-African publisher. Through the voices of the peoples of Africa and the global south, Pambazuka Press and Pambazuka News disseminate analysis and debate on the struggle for freedom and justice.

PLUTO PRESS has always had a radical political agenda. Founded in 1969 as a publishing arm of International Socialism, in 1979 Pluto broke with this political affiliation and became truly independent. Today, the press represents authors from a wide range of progressive political viewpoints. With over 550 titles in print, Pluto Press is one of the world's leading radical book publishers.

Founded in 1992, PURICH PUBLISHING LTD. is a Saskatoon, Saskatchewan based publisher specializing in books on Aboriginal, legal, Social Justice and western Canadian issues.

RED QUILL BOOKS is a new peer-reviewed academic publishing house committed to the support of critical political economy, sociology, social theory, criminology, legal studies and social science research.

ROSEWAY PUBLISHING aims to publish literary work that is rooted in and relevant to struggles for social justice. We are interested in publishing works of fiction, creative non-fiction, biographies and other literary writing that has a social justice theme. Roseway is an imprint of Fernwood Publishing.

Established in 1974 as the College of Cape Breton Press, CBU PRESS serves as a link between the Cape Breton University and its broader communities, publishing literature of significance to Cape Breton Island and that which enhances knowledge about the Island, its history and cultural preservation. CBU Press continues to be a leading publisher of works related to community development (CED), read by scholars and activists around the world.

WAVES OF THE FUTURE focuses on global warming, the environment, social issues and world development. We look for innovative solutions to today's problems.

Originally founded in 1977 and based in London, ZED BOOKS hopes to make a positive difference in the world of social action and intellectual ideas. Zed is committed to contributing to a deeper understanding of the issues, conditions of life, oppressive structures and dominant ideologies that confront ordinary people and to drawing attention to the human struggles and innovative ideas that hold out some hope for an improvement in the human condition.

AFRICA

Congo Masquerade: The Political Culture of Aid Inefficiency and Reform Failure

Theodore Trefon

Congo Masquerade is about mismanagement, hypocrisy and powerlessness in what has proved to be one of Africa's most troublesome and volatile states. Trefon argues that while others have examined war and plunder in the Great Lakes region, none have yet evaluated the imported 'template format' reform package pieced together to introduce democracy and improve the well-being of ordinary Congolese. It has, the book demonstrates, been for years an almost unmitigated failure due to the ingrained political culture of corruption among the Congolese elite, abetted by the complicity and incompetence of international partners.

Politics in Africa: A New Introduction

Nana Poku & Anna Mdee

Democracy, prosperity and self-rule: this was the vision of African independence. The founding father of Ghana, Kwame Nkrumah, claimed: 'with self government, we'll transform Africa into a paradise in ten years.' A mere 50 years later, Nkrumah's assurance seems no more than a distant dream. Across the continent, the 'optimism' that characterized the immediate post-independence period has largely faded. Meanwhile, ordinary Africans lurch between undemocratic, unaccountable and unresponsive governments and a decaying traditional African past. Politics in Africa offers a fresh perspective that makes the continent's problems more understandable, less wretched and even intensely hopeful.

ANTHROPOLOGY

Anthropology's World: Life in a Twenty-first Century Discipline

Ulf Hannerz

In this masterly, state of the art work, Ulf Hannerz maps the contemporary social world of anthropologists and its relation to the wider world in which they carry out their work. Raising fundamental questions such as 'What is anthropology really about?', 'How does the public understand, or misunderstand, anthropology?' and 'What and where do anthropologists study now, and for whom do they write?' Hannerz invites anthropologists to think again about where their discipline is going.

BUSINESS

Confronting Managerialism: How the Business Elite and Their Schools Threw Our Lives Out of Balance

Robert R. Locke & J.-C. Spender

Confronting Managerialism offers a critique of the crippling influence of neoclassical economics and modern finance on business school teaching and management practice. In doing so, Locke and Spender show how business managers, who were once well-regarded as custodians of the economic engines vital to our growth and social progress, now seem closer to the rapacious 'robber barons' of the 1880s. In effect, responsible management has given way to 'managerialism', whereby an elite caste of businessmen disconnected from any ethical considerations now call the shots, sending the lives of rest of us 'out of balance'.

CANADIAN STUDIES

Archival Narratives for Canada: Re-Telling Stories in a Changing Landscape

Kathleen Garay (McMaster) & Christl Verduyn (Mount Allison), eds.

Every nation has stories that help to define the country and its people. Focusing on widely varied written sources, Archival Narratives for Canada is an examination of the stories that have defined Canada. Professional archivists, scholars and researchers working with archives — local, regional, national and international — explore the changing landscape of archival resources in Canada and in particular the role of archives in shaping the country's narratives. This collection also includes case studies demonstrating the value of archival research in reconstructing nineteenth and twentieth century Canadian texts and authors.

Shaping An Agenda for Atlantic Canada

John G. Reid (Saint Mary's) & Donald J. Savoie (Moncton), eds.

Atlantic Canada stands at a crossroads. Slow population growth, political marginalization, an aging population and fiscal stress are among the most urgent issues. Faced with this reality, Atlantic Canadians must find a new way forward. Offering the perspectives of authors from a variety of disciplines, Shaping an Agenda for Atlantic Canada reflects on historical and contemporary themes relevant to the future. The goal of this book is not to offer glib diagnoses or instant solutions but to identify considerations that would assist Atlantic Canadians in designing a road map into the future.

COMMUNITY/URBAN STUDIES

Time and the Suburbs: The Politics of Built Environments and the Future of Dissent

Rohan Quinby

By combining provocative prose with photo-essay, Time and the Suburbs explores the disappearance of cities in North America under the weight of suburban, exurban, and other forms of development that are changing the way we live. Pointing to the complex experience of time in traditional cities, the book warns that our new suburban regions are the materialization of a homogenous and uniform experience of time that threatens the possibility of social change.

CRIMINOLOGY

Anti-Security

Mark Neocleous & George S. Rigakos (Carleton), eds.

Security has reached an analytic blockage. The more security seems post-political, post-social, or even post-modern the more it escapes analytic scrutiny. Social problems become security problems while projects of pacification continue to be legitimized under the rubric of security. To be against security today is to stand against the entire global economic system. If security has become the dominant, perhaps impenetrable concept of our times, then we must start entertaining the impossible. We must begin asking: what would doing anti-security look like?

Blind Goddess: A Reader on Race and Justice

Alexander Papachristou, ed. Introduction by Patricia Williams

Blind Goddess brings together the most significant writings of practitioners, professors, and advocates to make sense of what is perhaps the United States' most astonishing and shameful achievement: the highest per-capita incarceration rate anywhere in the world, compounded by the shockingly disproportionate imprisonment of poor people of color. Although there is growing awareness of the huge fiscal cost of mass incarceration, the moral, human, and social devastation of racially skewed law enforcement remains largely unrecognized.

Governing Girls: Rehabilitation in the Age of Risk

Christie L. Barron (Simon Fraser)

The current agenda on controlling youth violence in Canada is focused on risk assessment. Through interviews with young female offenders and youth justice authorities, Governing Girls examines female youth violence in the landscape of control and the reliance on risk assessment tools to classify and manage youth. Exploring treatment and rehabilitation in the age of risk, as well as analyzing the gender, race and class dimensions of the risk construct, Barron questions the impact of risk rationality and argues that actuarial technologies depoliticize the process of control and further marginalize young female offenders.

The New Jim Crow: Mass Incarceration in the Age of Colorblindness

Michelle Alexander

In the era of colorblindness, it is no longer socially permissible to use race, explicitly, as a justification for discrimination, exclusion, and social contempt. Yet, as Michelle Alexander reveals, today it is perfectly legal to discriminate against convicted criminals in nearly all the ways that it was once legal to discriminate against African Americans. Once you're labeled a felon, the old forms of discrimination—employment discrimination, housing discrimination, denial of the right to vote, denial of educational opportunity, denial of food stamps and other public benefits, and exclusion from jury service—are suddenly legal.

Pursuing Justice: An Introduction to Justice Studies

Margot A. Hurlbert (Regina), ed.

This book is about justice: its definition, boundaries, contradictions and nuances. It is also about pursuing justice and the mechanisms that enable this pursuit. But justice is a tricky topic—just defining it is daunting. Pursuing Justice attempts to define and pursue the illusive notion of justice in Canadian society. Distinguishing between formal justice, substantive justice and ethical practice, this book offers a multidisciplinary exploration of issues related to the pursuit of social justice, legal justice and restorative justice. Each chapter contains questions, case studies, summaries and suggestions for additional resources.

Security, With Care: Restorative Justice and Healthy Societies

Elizabeth M. Elliott (Simon Fraser)

Restorative justice, as it exists in Canada and the U.S., has been co-opted and relegated to the sidelines of the dominant criminal justice system. The author argues that restorative justice must be more than a program within the current system — it must be a new paradigm for responding to harm and conflict. Facilitating this shift requires a rethinking of the assumptions around punishment and justice, placing emphasis instead on values and relationships. If we can achieve this change, we have the potential to build a healthier, more ethical and more democratic society.

CULTURAL STUDIES

Cultures of Militarization: Special Issue of TOPIA

Jody Berland (York University) & Blake Fitzpatrick (Ryerson University), eds.

A broad discussion by twenty-two international scholars and artists whose work investigates the processes through which military presence is normalized or critiqued in private, public and national narratives. The relationship between militarism and civic culture pushes us beyond a static binary to reveal several dynamically related terms and issues. The collection is not a move to summarize militarism into a finite set of conceptual terms, but rather offers evidence of the tangential, broad, insidious and revealed presence of militarization throughout culture.

Indecent Acts In A Public Place: Sports, Insolence and Sedition
Rod Dubey

20th anniversary edition of a collection of unique and polemical essays on sport. 'Awash In Bodily Fluids' is an essay that considers the men's society of the sporting fraternity. 'Playing Dumb' looks at the tendency of play to challenge authority, particularly the hierarchical and corporate organization of sport. 'The Sporting Gaze' is a look at sport as an active and accessible realm of fantasy and popular myth making that makes sport far more popular than competing spectacles, such as politics. DEVELOPMENT STUDIES

Maldevelopment: Anatomy of a Global Failure, 2nd ed.

Samir Amin

In this updated edition of his 1990 book Samir Amin explains the complex changes of the late 20th and early 21st centuries, including the transformations in Eastern Europe and in the world economy, the growth of capitalism in China and, despite the West riding on the crest of new technologies, its materialist goals being increasingly questioned by new social movements including the Greens. The world needs to be remade on the basis of an alternative social system that is national, popular and based on South-South cooperation and that delinks the South from the North.

Paved with Good Intentions: Canada's Development NGOs on the Road from Idealism to Imperialism

Nik Barry-Shaw, Yves Engler & Dru Oja Jay

Cutting through the Non-Governmental Organizations catch-phrases of 'participation' and 'empowerment,' Paved with Good Intentions is a critical history that examines the relationships between NGOs, the Canadian government and social movements, in both the North and South. Connecting the NGO boom to the onset of the neoliberal era, this book illustrates how NGOs have served to soften the blow of structural adjustment while co-opting dissent. This book is a call to judge NGOs by the standards they set for themselves when they claim to work for development in poorer countries.

ECOLOGY/ENVIRONMENT

Common Ground: The Sharing of Land and Landscapes for Sustainability

Mark Everard

Common Ground explores the shifting relationship between human society and the landscapes that bear it. Examining the changing understandings of the natural world and its management and exploitation, environmental activist Mark Everard presents solutions in the nature of ecosystem services. The book offers a fresh and vital whole-system approach to the key underpinning the issue of sustainability. Everard looks ahead to what is required to live sustainably, respecting the central role of landscapes in supporting human wellbeing into the long-term future.

Hydropolitics: An Introduction

Stella Thomas

Is water becoming the forgotten resource in the shadow of climate policy for environmental experts and activists? Hydropolitics is an expert and comprehensive new text that fills this gap by presenting an accessible guide to the full spectrum of hydropolitics. Starting from the premise of water as basic human right, the book presents case studies of regions under acute water stress, and then explores the global political currents that effect water as a development tool, to present environmental and development solutions for a sustainable world.

Stop Signs: Cars and Capitalism on the Road to Economic, Social and Ecological Decay

Bianca Mugenyi & Yves Engler

The authors of this book argue that the automobile's ascendancy is inextricably linked to capitalism and involved corporate malfeasance, political intrigue, backroom payoffs, media manipulation, racism, academic corruption, third world coups, secret armies, environmental destruction and war. When we challenge the domination of cars, we also challenge capitalism. An anti-car, road-trip story, Stop Signs is a unique must-read for all those who wish to escape the clutches of auto insanity.

What Every Environmentalist Needs to Know About Capitalism: A Citizen's Guide to Capitalism and the Environment

Fred Magdoff & John Bellamy Foster

There is a growing consensus that the planet is heading toward environmental catastrophe: climate change, ocean acidification, ozone depletion, global freshwater use, loss of biodiversity, and chemical pollution all threaten our future unless we act. This short, readable book is a sharply argued manifesto for those environmentalists who reject schemes of 'green capitalism' or piecemeal reform. Environmental and economic scholars Magdoff and Foster contend that the struggle to reverse ecological degradation requires a firm grasp of economic reality.

ECONOMICS

Debunking Economics: The Naked Emperor Dethroned, 2nd ed.

Steve Keen

Debunking Economics exposes what many non-economists may have suspected and a minority of economists have long known: that economic theory is not only unpalatable, but also plain wrong. When the original Debunking was published back in 2001, the market economy seemed invincible, and conventional 'neoclassical' economic theory basked in the limelight. In this expanded new edition, Keen builds on his scathing critique of conventional economic theory while explaining what mainstream economists cannot: why the crisis occurred, why it is proving to be intractable, and what needs to be done to end it.

The Delusions of Economics: The Misguided Certainties of a Hazardous Science

Gilbert Rist

In The Delusions of Economics, Gilbert Rist presents a radical critique of neoclassical economics from a social and historical perspective. Rather than enter into existing debates between different orthodoxies, Rist instead explores the circumstances that prevailed when economics was 'invented', and the resultant biases that helped forge the construction of economics as a 'science'. In doing so, Rist demonstrates how these various presuppositions are either obsolete or just plain wrong, and that traditional economics is largely based on irrational convictions that are difficult to debunk due to their 'religious' nature. As a result, we are prevented from properly understanding the world around us and dealing with the financial, environmental and climatic crises that lie ahead.

The Global Minotaur: America, the True Origins of the Financial Crisis and the Future of the World Economy

Yanis Varoufakis

Yanis Varoufakis explodes the myth that financialisation, ineffectual regulation of banks, greed and globalisation were the root causes of the global economic crisis. Rather, they are symptoms of a much deeper malaise which can be traced all the way back to the Great Crash of 1929, then on through to the 1970s: the time when a 'Global Minotaur' was born. Today's crisis in Europe, the heated debates about austerity versus further fiscal stimuli in the U.S., the clash between China's authorities and the Obama administration on exchange rates are the inevitable symptoms of the weakening Minotaur; of a global 'system' that is now as unsustainable as it is imbalanced. Going beyond this, Varoufakis lays out the options available to us for reintroducing a modicum of reason into a highly irrational global economic order.

EDUCATION

Class Dismissed: Why We Cannot Teach or Learn Our Way Out of Inequality
John Marsh

In Class Dismissed, John Marsh debunks a myth cherished by journalists, politicians, and economists: that growing poverty and inequality in the United States can be solved through education. Using sophisticated analysis combined with personal experience in the classroom, Marsh not only shows that education has little impact on poverty and inequality, but that our mistaken beliefs actively shape the way we structure our schools and what we teach in them.

Interpersonal Communication: A Cultural Approach
Carol Corbin and Dawn White (Cape Breton University)

A cultural approach to interpersonal communication is important because in today's globalized world, we no longer live in isolated communities; we live in multicultural societies. This book takes a cultural approach to relationships: the cultures, communities and groups we live in shape our interpersonal communication, relationships and identities. In each of these contexts, power relations shape how interactions occur, and it is through the lens of culture that we can most clearly see how power works in our lives and our relationships. Using our cognitive abilities to understand the changing world we live in may help us live more sustainable, more ethical and happier lives.

FOOD/FOOD SECURITY

Earth Grab: The Rise of Geopiracy, the New Biomasters and Capturing Climate Genes

Diana Bronson, Jim Thomas, Hope Shand & the ETC Group
'Geopiracy' analyses how Northern governments and corporations are cynically using growing concerns about the ecological and climate crisis to propose geoengineering 'quick fixes'. 'The New Biomasters' exposes how a biomass economy based on using gene technologies to reprogram living organisms to behave as microbial factories will facilitate the liquidation of ecosystems. 'Capturing Climate Genes' shows how the world's largest agribusiness companies including Monsanto, BASF, Dupont and Syngenta are pouring billions of dollars into, and claiming patents on, what are claimed to be 'climate-ready crops'.

Food Sovereignty in Canada: Creating Just and Sustainable Food Systems

Hannah Wittman (Simon Fraser), Annette Aurelie Desmarais (Regina) & Nettie Wiebe (Saskatchewan), eds.

Through an interdisciplinary and multi-sectoral approach, Food Sovereignty in Canada explores how communities all over the country are implementing alternative agricultural and food models within the framework of food sovereignty. This framework offers models that are less environmentally damaging, keep farmers on the land and ensure that urban dwellers have access to healthy and safe food. Achieving food sovereignty requires conceptual and practical changes, reshaping menus, farming, communities, relationships, values and policy, but, as the authors clearly demonstrate, the work of building food sovereignty in Canada is well under way.

The World According to Monsanto: Pollution, Corruption and the Control of Our Food Supply

Marie-Monique Robin

The book tells the shocking story of how the new 'green' face of the world's leading producer of GMOs (genetically modified organisms) is no less malign than its PCB- and Agent Orange-soaked past. Following its long history of manufacturing hazardous chemicals and lethal herbicides, Monsanto now controls the majority of the yield of the world's genetically modified corn and soy—ingredients found in more than 95 percent of American households—and its alarming legal and political tactics to maintain this monopoly are the subject of worldwide concern, with baleful consequences for the world's small-scale farmers.

GENDER STUDIES

African Sexualities: A Reader

Sylvia Tamale, ed.

This groundbreaking volume, the first of its kind written by African activists themselves, aims to inspire a new generation of students and teachers to study, reflect and gain fresh and critical insights into the complex issues of gender and sexuality. It opens a space — particularly for young people — to think about African sexualities in different ways. The book adopts a feminist approach that analyses sexuality within patriarchal structures of oppression while also highlighting its emancipatory potential.

Feminism Is Queer: The Intimate Connection Between Queer and Feminist Theory

Mimi Marinucci

Feminism Is Queer is an introduction to the intimately related disciplines of gender and queer theory. While guiding the reader through complex theory, the author develops the original position of queer feminism, which presents queer theory as continuous with feminist theory. While there have been significant conceptual tensions between second wave feminism and traditional lesbian and gay studies, queer theory offers a paradigm for understanding gender, sex and sexuality that avoids the conflict in order to develop solidarity among those interested in feminist theory and those interested in lesbian and gay rights.

Men & Women and Tools: Bridging the Divide

Marcia Braundy

Although there have been many equity initiatives to encourage women to enter the trades, Canadian women still represent less than 3 percent of tradesworkers. Why does this disparity continue to exist? Marcia Braundy — herself a tradesperson — explores this issue by focusing on male resistance to the inclusion of women in technical work. With a line-by-line deconstruction of a short play — based on an interview Braundy conducted with several male and female tradespeople — this book weaves together scholarly research and lived experience to explore the historical and cultural origins of the ideas expressed.

HEALTH/HEALTH CARE

About Canada: Health and Illness

Dennis Raphael (York)

This book argues that it is the social determinants of health, imposed on us by the 'market,' that dictate the health of Canadians. Social determinants include such things as income and wealth, employment, quality of education, access to health and social services and ability to obtain food and housing. Dennis Raphael compellingly demonstrates that the health and longevity of Canadians could be greatly improved not by changes to lifestyle, but through simple changes to social policy.

A People's History of Poverty in America

Stephen Pimpare

Stephen Pimpare brings the human lives and real-life stories of those who struggle with poverty in America to the foreground, vividly describing life as poor and welfare-reliant Americans experience it, from the big city to the rural countryside. A People's History of Poverty in America unearths rich, poignant, and often surprising testimonies—both heart-wrenching and humorous—that range from the early days of the United States to the present day. The book reminds us that poverty is not in itself a moral failure, but our failure to understand it may well be.

IMMIGRATION

A People's Citizenship Guide

Esyllt Jones (Manitoba) and Adele Perry (Manitoba), eds.

In 2009, Harper's Conservative government changed the contents of the official citizenship guide given to recent immigrants. The new version contained more military history and information about the monarchy, but little about public programs such as medicare or education or our rich history of social justice movements. In short, the official guide outlines an exceptionally narrow, conservative view of Canadian politics and society. In A People's Citizenship Guide, a group of progressive historians offer an alternative citizenship guide: a lively, political, humane—and more accurate—alternative to Stephen Harper's version of the story.

INDIGENOUS STUDIES

Beyond Blood: Rethinking Indigenous Identity

Pamela D. Palmater (Ryerson)

The author argues that the Indian Act's registration provisions (status) will lead to the extinguishment of First Nations as legal and constitutional entities. The current status criteria, adopted by many First Nations, contain descent-based rules akin to blood quantum that are particularly discriminatory against women and their descendants. She offers suggestions for a better way of determining Indigenous identity and citizenship, and argues that First Nations themselves must determine their citizenship based on ties to the community, not blood or status.

The Duty to Consult: New Relationships with Aboriginal Peoples

Dwight G. Newman (Saskatchewan)

Canada's Supreme Court has established a new legal framework requiring governments to consult with Aboriginal peoples when contemplating actions that may affect their rights. The nature of the duty is to be defined by negotiation, best practices, and future court decisions. According to Professor Newman, good consultations are about developing relationships and finding ways of living together in the encounter that history has thrust upon us. Professor Newman examines Supreme Court and lower court decisions, legislation at various levels, policies developed by governments and Aboriginal communities, and consultative round tables that have been held to deal with important questions regarding this duty. He succinctly examines issues such as: when is consultation required; who is to be consulted; what is the nature of a 'good' consultation; can consultation be carried out by quasi-judicial agencies and third parties; to what extent does the duty apply in treaty areas; and what duty is owed to Métis and non-status Indians? Professor Newman also examines the evolving duty to consult in international law, similar developments in Australia, and the philosophical underpinnings of the duty.

Kaandossiwin: How We Come to Know

Kathleen E. Absolon (Minogiizhigokwe) (Wilfrid Laurier)

Indigenous methodologies have been silenced by the Western scientific means of knowledge production. In a challenge to this colonialist rejection of Indigenous knowledge, Anishinaabe researcher Kathy Absolon examines the academic work of Indigenous scholars who utilize Indigenous worldviews in their search for knowing. Examining not only their work but also their experience producing that work, Kaandossiwin describes how Indigenous researchers re-theorize and re-create methodologies. In exploring the ways Indigenous re-searchers use Indigenous methodologies within mainstream academia, Kaandossiwin renders these methods visible and helps to guard other ways of knowing from colonial repression.

Making a Living: Place, Food, and Economy in an Inuit Community

Nicole Gombay

Until recently, most residents of the Northern Quebec community of Puvirnituk made their living off the land. Successful hunting, fishing, trapping, and gathering involved the active participation of community members so that ideally no one went without. As the Inuit were drawn, or forced, into settlements, one challenge has been accommodating their belief in sharing with the demands of a market economy. This book delves into the community's experiences as they incorporate a monetized economy into their own notions of how to operate as a society.

Turkey Since 1989: Angry Nation

Kerem Oktem

Since Turkey was catapulted back onto the world stage in 1989 it has turned into a major power broker and has developed into one the largest economies in the world. The country has, however, failed to peacefully resolve its ethnic, religious and historical conflicts. Today, Turkey appears to be coming to terms with the many sources of its anger, if cautiously and slowly. At this historic turning point, Turkey Since 1989: Angry Nation charts the contemporary history of Turkey by looking at the country's erratic transformation from a military dictatorship to a maturing, if still troubled, democracy.

MEDIA

About Canada: Media

Peter Steven (Sheridan)

Canada enjoys a long-held reputation for producing high-quality media and receives critical international acclaim, but in recent years funding cuts, commercial media concentration and a sour political environment have been steadily eroding this reputation. Examining developments in film, television, the internet and newspapers, Peter Steven finds that the quality of our news and entertainment media is steadily declining, becoming increasingly restricted and less diverse. About Canada: Media explores all things CanCon and argues that Canadians must reclaim the media from elite interests in order to ensure it's democratic and high-quality future.

Al-Qaeda: From Global Network to Local Franchise

Christina Hellmich

The Rebel Series

Al-Qaeda, the first transnational terrorist group of the 21st century, embodies the new enigmatic face of terrorism and dominates discussions over national and international security. Yet we know surprisingly little about it as an organization. In this concise but comprehensive volume, Hellmich draws on a wealth of Arabic-language sources — much of it previously unavailable in English — to provide a penetrating overview of the organization, its members and ideological make-up, and maps al-Qaeda's trans-tion from a global network to localized fragments in the broader context of theoretical and conceptual post-9/11 concerns.

Israeli Rejectionism: A Hidden Agenda in the Middle East Peace Process

Zalman Amit & Daphna Levit

The Palestine-Israel conflict is one of the longest running and seemingly intractable confrontations in the modern world. This book delves deep into the 'peace process' to find out why so little progress has been made on the key issues. The authors find overwhelming evidence of Israeli rejectionism as the main cause for the failure of peace. They demonstrate that the Israeli leadership has always been against a fairly-negotiated peace and have deliberately stalled negotiations for the last 80 years. The motivations behind this rejectionist position have changed, as have the circumstances of the conflict, but the conclusion has remained consistent — peace has not been in the interest of the state of Israel.

Sami Adwan, Dan Bar-On, Eyal Naveh & PRIME (Peace Research Institute in the Middle East)

In 2000, a group of Israeli and Palestinian teachers gathered to address what to many people seemed an unbridgeable gulf between the two societies. Struck by how different the standard Israeli and Palestinian textbook histories of the same events were from one another, they began to explore how to 'disarm' the teaching of the history of the Middle East in Israeli and Palestinian classrooms. The result is a riveting 'dual narrative' of Israeli and Palestinian history. Side by Side comprises the history of two peoples in separate narratives set literally side by side, so that readers can track each against the other, noting both where they differ as well as where they correspond.

Women in Israel: Race, Gender and Citizenship

Nahla Abdo

Women in Israel provides a fresh, gendered analysis of citizenship in Israel. Working from a framework of Israel as a settler-colonial regime, this important, insightful book presents historical and contemporary comparative approaches to the lives and experiences of Ashkenazi, Mizrahi and Palestinian Arab women citizens. Nahla Abdo shows that no solution to the problems of the region can be found without changing existing racial and gender boundaries to citizenship.

Latina/Chicana Mothering

Dorsia Smith Silva, ed.

This collection provides a glimpse into the journey of mothering across a diverse spectrum of the histories, struggles, and stories of Latinas and Chicanas. Maternal Pedagogies: In and Outside the Classroom

Deborah L. Byrd & Fiona J. Green (Winnipeg), eds.

Maternal pedagogies describes scholarship that examines (1) the ways culturally dominant ideologies about motherhood are taught/challenged, (2) the ways various paradigms of maternal thinking/being/acting are constructed/embedded/enacted/resisted in teaching/learning (3) the verbal/non-verbal ways mothers and 'othermothers' transmit beliefs/values to children/students, (4) the ways formal education can empower/disempower mothers, (5) the ways being (or not being) a mother can affect a woman's pedagogical goals/strategies, (6) maternal ways of engaging in activism/advocacy work. This collection examines maternal pedagogies from an intersectional perspective recognizing the role that identity politics plays in both mothering and education.

Practicing Feminist Mothering

Fiona Joy Green (Winnipeg)

Practicing Feminist Mothering explores the realities of feminist mothering for both mothers and their children. It scrutinizes the discourse of motherhood by examining the material spaces that feminist mothers create to struggle with patriarchy. Based on in-depth interviews of sixteen feminist mothers conducted from 1995 to 2007, it includes interviews with some of the adult children, one of whom is now a mother. These interviews provide a rich understanding of the tensions within feminism surrounding issues of mothering and the reproduction of feminism itself.

Through the Maze of Motherhood: Empowered Mothers Speak

Erika Horwitz (Simon Fraser)

Through the Maze of Motherhood gives voice to mothers who resist the current discourse on mothering as it unpacks the benefits, intricacies, challenges, and struggles they experience. This unique book argues that mothers who think critically and actually take a stand against social pressures to be 'perfect mothers' experience a very real sense of empowerment. Based on qualitative research, the book dispels the belief that there is one right way to mother, and argues that a process of questioning and resisting current myths/discourse may result in more autonomous, agency driven, and empowered mothering.

POLITICAL ECONOMY

The Failure of Global Capitalism From Cape Breton to Colombia and Beyond

Terry Gibbs (Cape Breton University) & Garry Leech (Cape Breton University)

The commonalities between Cape Breton and Colombia do not end with coal. There are numerous connections directly related to the capitalist system: militant labour struggles, repression, economic insecurity, population displacement, social inequality and environmental devastation. This book uses the examples of Cape Breton and Colombia to illustrate the harsh realities suffered by people throughout the global North and the global South under neoliberal globalization, particularly with regard to socio-economic and environmental issues. Ultimately, it exposes the failure of industrial capitalism, and looks toward more sustainable and egalitarian alternatives.

21st Century Socialism: Reinventing the Project

Henry Veltmeyer (Saint Mary's), ed.

The growing polarization between the rich and poor and the multidimensional systemic crisis of capitalism have given rise to a fundamental problem of our times: barbarism or socialism? Will we continue on the path of capitalist barbarism or move to a more just socialist system? The answer to this question, argue the authors, depends on whether the Left or the Right successfully organizes the forces of social transformation. Bringing together a passionate group of socialists, 21st Century Socialism participates in the critical debate concerned with reinventing and rebuilding socialism in the new century.

QUEER STUDIES

About Canada: Queer Rights

Peter Knegt

Is Canada a 'queer utopia'? Canada was the fourth country in the world to legalize same-sex marriage, and queer people enjoy many of the same legal rights as heterosexuals. But is this regulation and normalization of homosexuality what the 1970s lesbian and gay liberation movement fought for? Starting with this liberation movement, About Canada: Queer Rights examines the history of the struggle for queer rights in Canada, and finds that Canada's queer people are as diverse and multicultural as the country itself — they are not easily generalized and are most certainly not equal.

RACISM/RACE RELATIONS

Brown Skins, White Masks

Hamid Dabashi

Brown Skins, White Masks provides a critical examination of the role that immigrant 'comprador intellectuals' play in facilitating the global domination of American imperialism. In Black Skin, White Masks, Frantz Fanon explored the consequences of inferiority that colonized people felt, leading them to identify with the ideology of the colonial agency. Dabashi picks up where Frantz Fanon left off and extends Fanon's insights as they apply to today's world. Dabashi examines the ideology of cultural superiority and provides a passionate account of how these immigrant intellectuals continue to betray any notion of home or country in order to manufacture consent for imperial projects.

The Crises of Multiculturalism; Racism in a Neoliberal Age

Alana Lentini & Gavan Titley

Across the West, something called multiculturalism is in crisis. Regarded as the failed experiment of liberal elites, commentators and politicians compete to denounce its corrosive legacies: parallel communities threatening social cohesion, enemies within cultivated by irresponsible cultural relativism, mediaeval practices subverting national 'ways of life' and universal values. The authors of this book challenge the familiar narrative by arguing that what we are witnessing is not so much a rejection of multiculturalism as a projection of neoliberal anxieties onto the social realities of lived multiculturalism.

Home and Native Land: Unsettling Multiculturalism in Canada

May Chazan, Lisa Helps, Anna Stanley & Sonali Thakkar, eds.

Home and Native Land's articles, by some of the foremost critical thinkers and activists on issues of difference, diversity, and Canadian policy, challenge sedimented thinking on the subject of multiculturalism. Not merely 'another book' on race relations, national identity, or the post 9-11 security environment, this collection forges new and innovative connections by examining how multiculturalism relates to issues of migration, security, labour, environment/nature, and land. These novel pairings illustrate the continued power, limitations, and, at times, destructiveness of multiculturalism, both as policy and as discourse.

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS

Activism That Works

Elizabeth Whitmore (Carleton), Maureen G. Wilson (Calgary) & Avery Calhoun (Calgary), eds.

How can we understand 'success' in relation to social justice and environmental activism? How do activists themselves determine or define their effectiveness? Activism That Works shares the stories of eight diverse social justice movements, from Oxfam Canada, to the Calgary Raging Grannies, to the Youth Project of Halifax, as they contemplate their own successes. What we discover is that success is not measured only in large-scale social reform but is also found in moments of connection — in building relationships and raising awareness.

Broke But Unbroken: Grassroots Social Movements and Their Radical Solutions

Journalist Augusta Dwyer takes us on an inspiring journey through the slums and villages of Brazil, Indonesia, India and Argentina as she meets with organizers from some of the most successful grassroots social movements struggling against poverty. The organizers are the poor themselves — people who know intimately the reality of struggling for land, food, housing and the right to control their own resources and means of production. It is these movements that have achieved the most successes in ameliorating the conditions of the poor. This book introduces us to extraordinary grassroots movements — and encourages us to learn the lessons they offer about successfully challenging power and changing the world.

Committing Theatre: Theatre Radicalism and Political Intervention in Canada

Alan Filewod (Guelph)

Committing Theatre offers the first full-length historical study of political intervention theatre and theatrical spectatorship in English Canada. Building on twenty years of research and engagement in the field, this book's historical narrative frames close-up examples of how theatre artists have intervened in and engaged with political struggle from the mid-19th century to the present. Lumber-camp mock trials, Mayday parades and street protests, the Workers Theatre Movement, agitprop theatre, the counter-culture theatre of the 1960s and 1970s, and more recent anarchist theatre collectives all played a role in a vibrant and unique radical theatre culture that went largely unnoticed, unrecorded, and undocumented by the professional theatre establishment.

In June 2010 activists opposing the G20 meeting held in Toronto met arbitrary state violence on a scale never before seen in Canada. Whose Streets? both reflects critically on what occurred in Toronto and looks ahead to further building our capacity for resistance. From activists who helped organize the mobilizations, to passersby who were arbitrarily arrested and detained, and scholars committed to the theory and practice of confronting neoliberal capitalism, the collection balances critical perspective with on-the-street intensity. It offers vital insight for activists on how local organizing and global activism can come together.

Henry Heller (Manitoba)

The Future of World Capitalism Series

In light of the deepening crisis of capitalism and continued non-Western capitalist accumulation, Henry Heller re-examines the debates surrounding the transition from feudalism to capitalism in Europe and elsewhere. Focusing on arguments about the origin, nature and sustainability of capitalism, Heller offers a new reading of the historical evidence and a critical interrogation of the transition debate. He suggests that capitalism must be understood as a political as well as an economic entity and concludes that the future of capitalism is more threatened than ever before.

The Contradictions of "Real Socialism": The Conductor and the Conducted

Michael Lebowitz

The author considers the legacy of twentieth century socialist societies or what some have termed 'real socialism'. While these societies were able to claim major achievements in areas from health care to education to popular culture, they nonetheless met limited success in eroding what Marx called the 'opposition of the worker as direct producer and the proprietor of the means of production'. The question of how the production process is organized is crucial to any evaluation of past attempts to build socialism.

SOCIAL WORK

Research for Social Justice: A Community-Based Approach

Adje van de Sande (Carleton) & Karen Schwartz (Carleton)

Most social work research texts are written from an empiricist and positivist perspective, emphasizing the scientific method and the value of objectivity in research. While acknowledging that certain aspects of the scientific method should be preserved, this book argues that social work research should not be value-free. Social work is committed to social justice and social change, and social work research needs to support that commitment. Research for Social Justice examines how the structural perspective and anti-oppressive principles — which understand problems as structural rather than individual — provide this support.

About Canada: Youth and Children

Bernard Schissel (Royal Roads)

Canada is a signatory on the United Nations Declaration of the Rights of the Child, which guarantees the protection and care of children and youth. About Canada: Youth and Children examines each of the rights within the Canadian context — and finds Canada wanting. While the hearts of Canadians go out to youth in distant countries suffering under oppressive circumstances, those same hearts often have little sympathy for the suffering of youth, particularly disadvantaged youth, within Canada. This book explores our contradictory views and argues that we must do more to ensure that the rights of the child are upheld.

What impact does a conventional Christian view of sexuality have on women's sexual lives? Through conversations with young Protestant women, Good Girls, Good Sex explores how both religious values and communities shape women's sexual experiences and the role of social class and race in this shaping. Although the idea of the 'good girl' is a common theme, many of the women challenged the notion of 'no sex before marriage' and saw their sexuality and insights into their church community as a means to challenge systems of patriarchy that persist in these spaces.

Reclaiming the F Word: The New Feminist Movement

Catherine Redfern & Kristin Aune

In today's 'post-feminist' society, women and men are considered equal. For younger women and men, feminism is often portrayed as unfashionable and irrelevant. But since the beginning of the new millennium a revitalised feminist movement has emerged to challenge these assumptions and assert a vibrant new agenda. This groundbreaking book reveals the what, why and how of the new feminist movement and what it has to say about women's lives in today's society. From cosmetic surgery to celebrity culture, from girl power to globalization, from rape to religion and from sex to singleness, this book reveals the seven vital issues at stake for today's feminists, unveils the beginnings of a fresh and diverse wave of feminism, and calls a new generation back to action

Pathways, Bridges: The Psychosocial Determinants of Women's Health

Joanne Gallivan (Cape Breton University) & Suzanne Cooper (Carleton University), eds.

Health research and policy have come to new understandings of human health through the framework based on knowledge of the determinants of health. This framework has inspired new efforts to explore the impact of psychosocial factors on health. This collection of recent research addresses a variety of psychosocial and social factors in women's health: pathways to wellness and healing; bridges for physical health determinants; coping mechanisms that provide havens for people dealing with the negative consequences of poor health. The research papers in this book are from presentations made at an institute June 2008, in Halifax, Nova Scotia, sponsored by the Section on Women and Psychology (SWAP) of the Canadian Psychological Association. They are a sampler of the contributions that scholars in psychology and related fields are making to understanding women's health.

The Women, Gender and Development Reader, 2nd ed.

Nalini Visvanathan, Lynn Duggan, Laurie Nisonoff & Nan Wiegersma, eds.

This book is a comprehensive reader presenting the best of the now vast body of literature that has grown up alongside the acknowledgement that Third World women play a critical role in the development process. After examining key theoretical debates and fundamental concepts, this book uses case studies from all regions to vividly illustrate these debates, locating women within both the household and the global economy, exploring the impact on women of structural adjustment policies and examining the ways in which women are organizing themselves for change.
